Radical Mexican Government Blames Them for Wrecking of Train

MEXICO CITY, Mexico.—(AP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, former "strong man" of Mexico, was arrested Friday in a surprise coup by the government.

He was placed aboard an airplane with three of his principal advisors and carried to a forced exile in the United States.

Others arrested were: Luis Morones, Luis Leon, and Rafael Melchor Ortega.

Leftists, in charge of the present government, charged that Calles was responsible for the bombing of the Mexico City-Veracruz train last Monday in which many persons, including government political leaders, were killed.

Three WPA Workers Killed in Cave-In

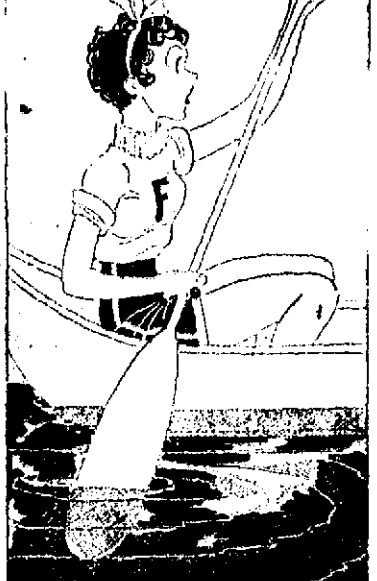

LA SALLE, Ill.—A cave-in killed three WPA workers employed in excavation for the foundation of an addition to the La Salle-Peru township high school Thursday.

The dead: Peter Compo of Chicago, Frank Just of Peru and Steve Urech of Chicago.

A fourth man, buried up to his neck, was brought out alive.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

HEG U. S. PAY OFF.

You come against storm problems when paddling your own canoe.

Portrayed in what is believed the world's largest painting, one of Christ's most tragic moments—Jesus, in patient, suppliant, and, heeding neither the loud lament of the women nor the taunts of the high priests, while the crosses were being erected upon which he and the guarded thieves behind Him were to die—is on exhibition in Chicago. Titled "Golgotha," the 135x44-foot masterpiece of Jan Styka, recently was resurrected from a South Side storage house in which it had reposed since it last was shown in 1911. Painted in Rome and Palestine over a period of several years at an estimated cost of more than $100,000, "Golgotha" was brought to Chicago in 1933 for the Columbian Fair. Proceeds from exhibition of the huge painting, owned by Frank Masterson, Chicago, will go to charity.

Caesar of mighty Rome, whose legions tramp
The dusty roads from Gaul to Galilee,
From eastern cities to the farthest camp
Of lonely sentries by the northern sea;
What do you do, upon this barren slope,
With sullen, stupid hatred at your side?
For all your power, do you dare to hope
That what you have here can be—crucified?

You are betrayed. For all you have and prize—
Death, which you rule by; fear, which is your aid—
Are from this moment helpless. In the skies
The hosts of all mankind march unafraid,
Singing, triumphant, freed eternally
From loneliness, defeat, and barren loss—
Because your blindness stood on Calvary
And raised eternal life upon a cross!

Public Ignorance of Bible Lamented

Bishop Edwin Mouzon Says He Is "Deeply Concerned" Over Public

LYNCHBURG, Va.—(AP)—Bishop Edwin Mouzon, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, says he is "deeply concerned" over public ignorance of the Bible's contents.

He said answers made by 18,434 Virginia high school students to a questionnaire showed:

Sixteen thousand of them could not name three prophets of the Old Testament.

Twelve thousand could not name the four gospels.

Ten thousand could not name three of Christ's disciples.

"If it is like this in Virginia, then it is likely to be worse almost anywhere in the country," said the scholarly churchman, whose residence is at Charlotte, N. C.

Roosevelt to Speak in Memphis June 4

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Ralph Logsdon, Chamber of Commerce convention chairman, said Thursday President Roosevelt plans to be in Memphis on June 4 to address the annual convention of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Plans Rice Industry

BUENOS AIRES.—(AP)—Argentina's attempts to diversify its crops, recently concentrated on cotton and fruit, have been extended to rice. The Argentine chamber of foreign commerce estimates by Japanese experts that certain northern lands could produce 5,000 pounds to the acre. Argentina now imports 50,000 tons annually from Brazil.

Levees Watched Upon Mississippi

Day and Night Patrols Are Begun in Area Near Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Night and day patrols were begun on some levees along the Mississippi as the river continued to rise.

About 300 families are moving or preparing to move out of the lowlands east of Marianna, Ark., because of backwater from the Mississippi backing up the St. Francis river.

Tents will be provided for these families in and around Marianna. The town, situated on top of Crowley's ridge, is far above any water level.

"A stage of 40 feet at Memphis is predicted by rivermen here and it will take more than that to make it serious," Mayor D. P. Harris of Marianna, said.

Locust Swarm Is Forecast in East

17-Year Pest Will Infest Eastern States During This Spring

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—Millions of 17-year locusts will swarm over most of the eastern United States this spring, Dr. Z. P. Metcalf, head of the department of entomology at North Carolina State college, says.

The host to appear this year will be the largest of the 17-year locusts now infesting the country, he believes.

The locusts will infest an area from Massachusetts to Iowa and from Michigan to northern Georgia and Alabama.

Melon Booth for Tourists Will Be Erected on No. 67

Hope Rotary Club Asks Co-operation of All Civic Groups

SERVE MELON FREE

Melon-Shaped Booth Inside City Limits Will Advertise Community

Hope Rotary club agreed at its meeting in Hotel Barlow Friday noon to sponsor a public booth on highway No. 67 inside the city limits where free ice-cold watermelons would be given away to out-of-state tourists this summer.

The project was outlined to the club members by Roy Anderson, president.

Mrs. Anderson extended an invitation to all civic organizations to join in sponsoring the watermelon booth. It is to be constructed in the form of a huge melon lying alongside the highway, and the plan is to have Hope women, members or wives of members, stand duty at the booth in relays several hours a day throughout the summer.

The booth will be the official greeting of the City of Hope to all tourists coming through here in 1936, on America's greatest transcontinental highway.

Booth Committee

President Anderson named on the booth committee the following: C. C. Lewis, E. F. McFadden and Albert Graves; together with three past presidents of the Watermelon Festival, Terrell Cornelius, L. Carter Johnson and Robert L. Wilson.

The nominating committee's report Friday, read by N. T. Jewell, submitted the following slate of officers for the new Rotary year:

President, Ed McCorkle; vice-president, Robert L. Wilson; secretary, the Rev. Thomas Brewster (renominated); treasurer, Max Walker; and directors (two), Phil Dulin, Jr., and L. Carter Johnson.

Friday's program, presented by Terrell Cornelius, consisted of a series of music numbers by Mrs. Robert Campbell's class of young violinists. They were: Patsy Ann Campbell, Linda Marie Cobb, Ophelia Hamilton and John R. Hamilton, with Burgher Jones accompanying them at the piano. The violin quartet numbers, and Burgher Jones' piano playing all were well received.

The Mumps Interfere

John R. Hamilton explained for the other youngsters that they had intended to appear in the recent musical competition at Magnolia, but John also took down with the mumps and there was no tournament for any of them.

Guests of the club Friday were Mrs. Terrell Cornelius, Mrs. Robert Campbell, and Geo. W. Robinson, Jr.

The following Rotarians went to Nashville to attend the inter-city

New Warning Is Given Dog Owners

Canines Must Be Muzzled of Penned Up, on Penalty of "Being Shot"

Negligence on the part of owners of dogs in not keeping them up or muzzled may result in a wholesale slaughter of the canines, Chief of Police Ridgill warned Friday.

"It is not our intention to deliberately kill anyone's dog—but must have cooperation from the citizens of Hope during the mad-dog scare here which has resulted in several persons being bitten."

"We have killed several dogs lately that were suspected of having rabies, and will continue to kill them if suspected to be mad."

"Some of the owners of dogs have had them vaccinated and have brought us certificates showing that they have taken precaution."

"Other owners have paid no attention. Their dogs are still running loose and are a menace to the general public, especially when more than a dozen dogs are known to be infected with rabies."

"This is a warning that dogs must either be kept up, muzzled or vaccinated," the chief said.

Mule Is "Guilty" in Campaign Probe

Sentenced to 2 Years in Jail, But Spaniards Are Lenient

BARCELONA, Spain.—(AP)—Precedent was established here when a mule was sentenced to two years in jail for electioneering.

The beast was placed in the garage of the city lock-up when found wandering about during the recent electoral campaign with campaign propaganda stenciled in large white letters on his black flanks.

A jury gravely convicted the dumb defendant on charges of violating an ordinance forbidding mobile electioneering.

Someone suggested that feeding and housing the prisoner might be a problem. Whereupon the judge sagely decided that the general amnesty decree, which had freed some 25,000 political prisoners, should be applied to the mule and the animal was given to the Humane Society.

Miniature Crime Wave Hits Hope; 5 Places Looted

Thieves' Swag Ranges From Liquor to a Blue-Bonnet Flower Bed

J. WILLIAMS LOSES

$150 of Liquor Stolen—McDowell Clothing Store Is Robbed

Police Friday had counted up more than $300 in loot stolen in a robbery wave that struck this city Wednesday and Thursday nights.

So assorted was the loot that it ranged from pretty little blue-bonnet flowers to $150 worth of whisky.

The heaviest loss was at the Jett Williams liquor store, South Walnut street, where robbers entered the building by breaking a lock on the front door.

$150 in Liquor
The robbers cleaned out seven shelves of tax-paid liquor, estimated by Mr. Williams to be valued at $150. The cash register, which contained $3 in change, was not molested.

No attempt was made to enter the safe. It appeared that the robbers were only after liquor.

Thursday night robbers entered the Jett Williams clothing store, East Third street, and stole merchandise valued at $90. The loot included four men's suits, dresses, shoes, underwear, hose and other articles.

Entrance was gained through a window on the east side of the building where the prowlers climbed a sign board to reach the window.

Only a few yards away the chicken coop of the Piggly-Wiggly store was raided. Seven or eight chickens were missing Friday.

Flowers Are Stolen
Across the street from the McDowell store, robbers dug up 100 blue-bonnet flowers that had been bedded on the Hempstead County Lumber company lawn.

The next place entered was the store-house of the Louisiana Oil Refining Corp., near the municipal airport.

There robbers carried away merchandise estimated at $70.

The loot included four tires and tubes, two batteries and a case of oil. Entrance was gained by breaking off a lock on the door.

Police had only meager clues.

Illicit Love Seen in Plot on Train

Wife Accused of Plotting Life of Aged Locomotive Engineer

PENSACOLA, Fla.—(AP)—Authorities moved Thursday to press new charges against a housewife, her lover and two negroes accused of plotting to wreck a train on which her husband was engineer. The husband prepared to defend her.

Escambia county authorities charge that the four planned to wreck a Louisville and Nashville passenger so that she and her lover might collect $3,000 in life insurance and be free to wed.

County solicitor Richard Merritt announced that he was preparing to charge the four with a "much more serious crime" than that of conspiracy, on which they are now held.

The husband, R. W. Vann of Perry Pass, refused to believe his wife guilty and said he would try to arrange $5,000 bond for her.

He said he did not believe a statement by Earl Travis, a Castleberry, Ala., carpenter, that he had been having an affair with Mrs. Vann.

Sheriff H. E. Gandy continued to hold two negroes, Allen Langston, 70, and Allen Finley, 16, whom he quoted as confessing to a企图 to wreck Vann's train on a curve near Cantonment, Fla.

The negroes said that Mrs. Vann paid them $50 and promised them "possibly $500 more" if they did a good job.

Bond for Travis, who is several years younger than Mrs. Vann, and for the negroes was set at $5,000 each.

Bulletins

LINDEN, Texas.—(AP)—Rangers and sheriffs guarded the Cass county courtroom as Willie Dickerson, negro, went to trial on a charge of criminally assaulting a 4-year-old girl near Atlanta, Texas last December. The state qualified the jurors for the death penalty.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa.—(AP)—One woman burned to death and two other persons were injured Friday in a fire which damaged Fisher's hotel here. The body of Mrs. William Lehman, hotel employee, was found on the second floor.

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Leopold von Hoesch, German ambassador to Great Britain, died of heart disease here Friday.

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Refunding Supervisor J. O. Goff announced Friday that savings of more than 2 million dollars had been effected by the state during the last 16 months through the bond refunding program.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany.—(AP)—The new Zeppelin Hindenburg landed here Friday, completing its maiden roundtrip to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Touching the giant steel industry for the first time, the Labor Relations Board Friday ordered the Jones Laughlin Steel corporation, of Pittsburgh, to reinstate 10 employees the board said had been discharged for union activity.

The company contended they had been let out for inefficiency and violation of rules.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The work relief program Friday was termed "as cruel as it is stupid," in the final report by Hugh S. Johnson as New York City WPA administrator. Johnson sharply criticized what he termed interference in getting the work relief program started there.

C. of C. Versus Labor
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce charged that business has been seized upon as the "handy whipping boy of politics" and a labor leader's call for the re-election of Roosevelt, was added Friday to the growing campaign year.

President Harper Sibley, addressing the chamber, urged business to give notice that "misrepresentation and the pilfering of business must be stopped forthwith."

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, called on labor to support Roosevelt.

Clean-Up Drive to Continue to 18th

Householders Urged to Sack Up Cans and Rubbish, at Curb

The city-wide "clean-up" campaign will continue until Saturday, April 18, it was announced Friday by Alderman Kenneth Hamilton.

Hope residents are urged to sack up their tin cans and rubbish and place it on the curb where trucks will pick it up. There are no charges for hauling.

The campaign started two weeks ago, but many residents have not responded to the movement, Mr. Hamilton said.

Bailey Moves to Nip Luciano Appeal

Attorney General Calls for Early Hearing of Federal Appeal

LITTLE ROCK.—In a surprise move to shorten time allowed Charles (Lucky) Luciano for an attempt to appeal from a ruling of Federal Judge Martineau here Tuesday, Attorney General Carl E. Bailey and Assistant Racket Prosecutor Edward McLean of New York left Thursday for Kansas City, where they will confer with Judge Kimbrough Stone of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Stone will be asked to set an early date for hearing the request for appeal, and a transcript of the proceedings here will be placed before him by the two officials who wish to hasten action leading toward Luciano's removal to New York, where he is under indictment on charges of operating a vice ring.

At a hearing here Tuesday, Luciano was denied a writ of habeas corpus by Judge Martineau and was remanded to custody of Sheriff Branch and placed in the Pulaski county jail pending outcome of the appeal proceeding.

At a conference Thursday with the attorney general and the New York lawyer, Judge Martineau declined to shorten the 10-day period allowed Luciano to secure a certificate from Judge Stone authorizing appeal from the ruling denying the habeas corpus writ.

TRIER, Germany.—(AP)—An airplane destined for use by missionaries in former German Southwest Africa was christened the St. Mathias in honor of this city's patron saint by Bishop Bornwasser, head of the local Roman Catholic diocese.

Easter Buying Is Seasonal Spur, as Campaign Looms

Republican Tariff Expert Favors Democratic "Reciprocity"

CHAMBER RAPS F. D. But Labor Leader Calls on His Union to Support Roosevelt

NEW YORK.—(AP)—With Easter buying supplying fresh momentum, retail trade closely approached its six-year peak during the past week, Dun & Bradstreet reported Friday.

Volume was cut down at some points by adverse weather.

Wholesale markets were less active, having completed last-minute fill-in requirements and urgent replacements for flood-damaged stores.

Republican Favorable
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Republican chairman of the Tariff Commission, urged the Republican party Friday to adopt a platform plank endorsing and accepting the New Deal's method of revising tariffs by reciprocal trade.

C. of C. Versus Labor
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce charged that business has been seized upon as the "handy whipping boy of politics" and a labor leader's call for the re-election of Roosevelt, was added Friday to the growing campaign year.

President Harper Sibley, addressing the chamber, urged business to give notice that "misrepresentation and the pilfering of business must be stopped forthwith."

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, called on labor to support Roosevelt.

Red Cross Refuses Probers of League

Meanwhile, Defense Pact Is Proposed for the Two Americas

GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—The International Red Cross refused Friday to turn over to the League of Nations' conciliation committee data it was reported to possess on alleged Italian use of poison gas in Ethiopia.

The new peace negotiations may start next Tuesday under the threat that additional sanctions may be decreed against Italy, if negotiations fail.

Western Pact Urged
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A concert of American nations pledged to mutual assistance in case of foreign aggression was proposed to Roosevelt Friday by General Jorge Ubaldo, president of Guatemala.

The proposal would call on all Central and South American nations to adhere to the Monroe doctrine, to preserve American peace, and would set up a permanent court of Inter-American justice modeled after the World Court.

Baby's Life Saved in Storm by Dog

Bulldog Shields Child's Body During Disaster at Tupelo

TUPELO, Miss.—(AP)—The story of how a bulldog shielded his young mistress's body during the torrid Sunday night and saved her from possible injury was revealed here Thursday.

Mrs. W. C. Hamilton said that when the storm struck her home, she was stunned. Regaining consciousness, she began a frantic search for members of the family. She found the lifeless body of her husband first.

In the glare of lightning she saw the dog, with his body protectively over that of the seven-month-old baby, Mary Patsy. Only her feet could be seen protruding from under the dog's body.

The child was uninjured, but her clothing was drenched with blood from her injured dog's body, battered by falling bricks and timbers. The dog will recover.

The Truth About Diet

DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Many of us can remember the time when such food as oranges, cranberries, grapefruit, and pineapple were almost unknown in the average diet. One of the greatest improvements in the diet has been the addition of such substances, made possible principally by improvement in transportation and shipping.

The refrigerator car, rapid travel by truck, and similar developments make possible the wide use of products which formerly were limited to local consumption simply because of the likelihood of decay during transportation.

The contribution of various fruits to the average diet depends on the manner in which the fruit is used and, of course, varies with the individual fruit product concerned. We eat fruits not only fresh, but also canned, dried, frozen, and in the form of fruit juices.

You should realize, however, that fruits are taken primarily for their carbohydrate, mineral, and vitamin content, and with very little regard for their protein or fat content. The average diet of most fruits are almost negligible.

Cruciferous fruits are quite digestible. The ease of digestion depends on the nature of the fruit and its degree of ripeness.

Today's Health Question
Q.—I have been using a much-advertised cold cream to cleanse my face, and a vanishing cream as a base for powder. I find that my pores are becoming enlarged. Is it because of the use of vanishing cream? Would it be better to use a good facial soap and some kind of base for powder to cleanse my face?

A.—In general, it is not advisable to use a toilet preparation with a greasy base when there is any tendency toward enlargement of the pores. Washing the face with water and soap, preferably not a "medicated" variety, is a better method of cleansing it. Any satisfactory powder may be used, but no greasy base should be employed.

ripeness. A raw, ripe apple passes from the stomach about three hours and 10 minutes after it is eaten. A green apple takes longer.

The excess acid present in unripe fruit may produce irritation and is sometimes the cause of colic.

When fruits are cooked, the fibrous material is softened and they become easily edible. Cooking, however, will lessen greatly the value of many of the important ingredients.

The odors and flavors of fruits are due to small quantities of flavor substances, in many instances difficult to reproduce. Occasionally it is possible, however, to make artificial fruit flavors which are difficult to distinguish from the natural substance.

Fruits contain a high percentage of water. Most fruits tend to have an alkaline end result in the body, the exception being prunes, plums, and cranberries.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

The trouble with Russian novels is that they all sound alike for the first six or eight chapters.

They all seem to be about people named Alexia Petrovich, who are constantly drinking tea out of glasses and talking passionately about (a) their souls, (b) the Russian moujik, (c) his soul, or (d) the class war.

"Darkness and Dawn," by Alexia Tolstoy (Langmans, $2.50), runs true to type. For the first 140 pages it sounds like all the other Russian novels you've read. Then, suddenly, it starts going places.

This novel tells of the war and the revolution as seen through upper middle class eyes. It's here is a factory technician; its heroine, the daughter of a well-to-do doctor. And although the narrative covers only the years 1914-1918, it seems to describe a whole century of change.

That Russia was rotten ripe for a change, and that her ruling class displayed the very essence of stupidity and corruption, is not news. What this book brings out forcefully is the fact that the entire middle class was rooted almost alien.

It could ally itself neither with proletariat nor with peasant. From first to last it never had a glimmering of what the masses were thinking or feeling. Its dissolution was inevitable.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

The saying goes that people are better judged by a cross section of their lives than by the incident. And, although the law does not work on this plan, I agree that the good and the bad of any individual, mixed together, make the blend that is his color.

All of us are gray. Only the new-born babe is white. The shades of gray vary as much as the number of people on the earth. Each has his own tint.

And so it is with children. Each is a mixture of obedience and disobedience, of kindness, selfishness or generosity, duty and carelessness, just as we are.

Yet we don't think of them this way very often. Let a child do the things we lay out for him six days out of seven, and on the seventh day lead us a merry chase, and there are no words to express our discouragement.

Varies During Any One Day
Even in one day a child goes up and down in his conduct ratio. Perhaps he is good until three o'clock. Then suddenly something tempts him to stamp in ranks or to hide someone's hat, or to break a hair ribbon.

One is his reputation as a "good" boy. The teacher says, "Henry, I am surprised at you. Surprised and disappointed."

A fall from grace at home is seldom overlooked, either.

"But what am I to do?" cries Mrs. Brown. "Henry can't be allowed to play the radio when he knows he must study. I keep at him and at him, and finally get him to work. But I dread to see seven o'clock coming. He's a good boy otherwise."

This is something different. It is neither the impulsive act nor the unpremeditated slip. It is something that has taken deeper root. When things are like this, repeated scoldings and coaxings are a waste of time.

10 P. C. of Fallings Condouable
"Don't touch that radio. Now get to work," should be sufficient. If Henry knows what an order is, he will obey. If not, then there is something wrong with his training.

But even this terrible crime of Henry's, plus a few tricks in school, plus a fight now and then, balkiness, forgetfulness, or any of the hundred things that small boys fall in—if they add up to ten per cent, say, of his whole character picture, he's still pretty white. At least a very pale gray.

I don't call him a bad boy if he ninety per cent or even less, is there in his pepper and salt mixture. What a sap he would be if he were 100 per cent perfect!

Let us give credit where credit is due.

Gorgeous

BEGIN HERE TODAY
TOBY RYAN, 10, is a photographic model, posing for photographs to be used in advertisements. Unknown at first, she is now in high demand in the studios, particularly after she was chosen as "The Hillyer Soap Girl."

She shares an apartment with HARRY HILL, another model, engaged to marry CLYDE SABIN, who Toby describes.

When Toby was taken to the studio, she was with her mother, Mrs. Ryan. Toby's mother is a friend of HARRY HILL's mother, who is in the photo business.

After weeks of silence, Tim telephoned, but Toby makes an excuse for not seeing him.

Toby goes to the studio of DURYEA, the photographer, who puts on the blue dress she is to wear for the picture.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVII
DURYEA turned. "Mr. Hillyer!" he said. "How are you?"

He hurried to the doorway where Jay Hillyer stood, his eyes on the girl in blue.

Hillyer said, "I happened to be passing by the building and remembered I'd been meaning to stop in." He spoke to Duryea, but he was still looking at Toby, as though seeing her for the first time.

"You've met Miss Ryan, haven't you?" Duryea asked.

"Oh, Miss Ryan—" Hillyer said. "Yes, of course we've met."

He went on, as Toby came forward. "How are you? I didn't recognize you at first."

"I'm very well, thank you," Toby said. "I was just trying on this dress that was sent over to be used in a picture."

"From Cecile," Duryea explained. "How do you like it?"

Hillyer did not answer for a moment. Then he said, "The dress is very pretty. If you can photograph Miss Ryan in it and make her look just as she does now you'll have a wonderful picture, Duryea."

"I can do better than that. Wait, I'll show you."

The setting for the picture had been arranged. On a platform before the camera was a scene like a bit of summer landscape—green grass, a tree with flowering branches and a background like the palest of blue skies.

Duryea led Toby to the platform. She mounted it, and stood beside the flowering tree. From a box came the hat designed to go with the blue dress—a huge straw hat with a blue ribbon tied in a bow. Toby took the hat and dropped it carelessly at her feet. She reached for a branch of pink blossoms.

Without turning, she said to Duryea, "Is this right?"

"A little more to the side," the photographer directed. "Raise your head—no, that's too much. Lower it again. Yes, that's better."

He tilted a spotlight so that the yellow gleam shone directly on Toby's hair. An electric fan blew the folds of the organdie dress gently, as though stirred by a summer breeze.

"Chin up," Duryea said. "Now then, let's have a smile. A big smile—a real one. That's it!"

He turned to Hillyer. "There's your picture," he said quietly. "What do you think of it?"

"If you can catch that pose and that expression in a photograph you'll have a sensation."

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Williams and daughter Polly Anna spent Sunday with home folks of Fairview.

she told him about herself. She told him more than she realized—about the days before she had become a model, about Harriet and the apartment they shared together, about the studios, the people she met in them, the time she had gone out "on location" and nearly frozen and met Margaret Gregg.

Hillyer nodded at the mention of the name. Evidently he remembered Margaret Gregg as a Broadway celebrity. He said little about himself, in fact he talked little, but it was evident that he was enjoying himself.

IN THE CAT, driving to Toby's apartment, Hillyer said, "I expect it's been a dull evening for you."

"But it hasn't," Toby assured him. "I had a grand time."

"Well, you've given me a very pleasant evening. Very pleasant indeed. Perhaps—if you're sure you won't be bored—you'll let me take you to dinner again. And to the theater. Would you like to see 'Here Comes the Queen' some night next week?"

"Here Comes the Queen" was the latest musical play, with a cast that included several stars. It had been acclaimed unanimously by the critics, and tickets were sold for weeks in advance.

"I'd love to!" Toby said. "Then I'd like very much to take you. How would Tuesday night suit you?"

She said that so far as she knew she could go Tuesday. There was always the possibility of an emergency assignment that could not be avoided, or of re-takes.

It was agreed that, unless something unforeseen prevented, they would go to see "Here Comes the Queen" Tuesday night. Hillyer said he would telephone Tuesday morning.

A few moments later they reached her door and Toby said good night. She hurried up the stairs, hoping that Harriet was home. She wanted to tell Harriet about the evening and about Hillyer.

But Harriet was not at home. She came in later, when Toby was asleep. It was not until next morning over their coffee and orange juice, that the two girls discussed Toby's adventure.

"What do you think?" Toby asked. "Do you think it's all right for me to go with him?"

"Why not?"

"Well, he's so rich and, of course, he's lots older. It seems sort of queer—"

"What's he like? Did he make any passes at you?"

"Heaven, no! He's just as nice as he can be. And I do like him."

"Then, I don't see why you shouldn't let him spend some of his money on you. He's got plenty of it."

Harriet was pleased. Toby had been staying at home too much lately, mooning over Tim Jamieson who had obviously forgotten her. What Toby needed was to get out and go places. Hillyer seemed an ideal escort. He might even be seriously interested in Toby. Other girls—had married millionaires.

Harriet raised her cup of coffee, sipping it reflectively. "I don't see," she repeated, "why you shouldn't go out with him. I don't see any reason at all—"

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—Movie makers don't send out camera expeditions when they need action shots of angry apes in Africa, or seals frolicking on Alaskan rocks, or South Sea Islanders trading for calico.

Nether do they dispatch sound trucks to record cathedral chimers, or waves pounding a coral reef, or the clatter of wooden shoes in a Holland marketplace. They just send a messenger to Hollywood's General Film Library, where there's an almost priceless collection of 20,000,000 feet of film, silent and noisy.

The library has just about everything, all for rent at the tidy figure of $2.50 a foot. "Send us a hundred feet of wind in a schooner's rigging," orders a studio. Or "Please rush one dynamite blast, 50 feet of dog-fight, and 200 feet of cavalry crossing wooden bridges."

There are scenes from all over the world—Eskimos spearing fish, mountain climbers skipping from Alp to Alp, miners grubbing in tunnels, Orientals at prayer, diamond cutters at their wheels.

One of the six big film vaults contains only historical shots salvaged from ancient news reels. There are scenes of New York's 1900 Easter parade, of President McKinley's funeral, of the Wright brothers learning to fly.

Earthquake Trapped
Sounds, recorded on film tracks and stored in cans, range from an earthquake's roar of devastation (recorded at Long Beach, Calif., in 1933) to a cricket's chirp. In between are horse laughs, running feet, children yelling, monkeys chattering, water splashes, and owl hoots.

There are sounds of pandemonium from chicken coups, dog barks (all breeds), baby cries (all ages), mob thunder, cheers, applause. Sheep bleat, clocks tick, fires crackle, trains roar, and even the breathing of a tiger is recorded for use in feature films.

15-Years' Job
The sights and sounds have been gathered and indexed over a period of 15 years by a Mr. Morris M. Landres, short, bespectacled, and bushy-haired former civil engineer.

He has in his own staff of cameramen who travel about collecting modern scenes. Most of the sounds have been recorded by his own technicians.

It's a serious business with Landres, who doesn't crack a smile while explaining the varieties of door slamming. He has violent slams and medium slams, front and back door slams, slamming of heavy doors and slamming of screen doors. To the practiced ear, he says, they're all quite different.

When the rental business is dull, Landres patches together short films of his own, such as "Wild Women of Borneo." He posted that up out of stock shots which were going to waste in the library.

Super Blur
Individuals in the flicker business seem to be in almost unanimous agreement that trailers are bad advertising because they take up too much of the customers' time, offend them with extravagant claims which can't be justified, and tip off the best parts of the pictures to come. Yet trailers—those blinding blurs which, inconspicuously enough, precede and do not trail a picture—continue to be made.

A super-epic, colossal trailer with a bit of different twist is being made for "Anthony Adverse." It will have its

Gamest Bass Is the Small-Mouth

Larry Bauer, of A. P., Gives Interesting Discussion of Game Fish

By LARRY BAUER
Associated Press Writer

The gamest fellow, the small-mouth bass, is a fish worth knowing—if you're not already acquainted—and one that will test the angler's skill with light fly equipment.

For more than 20 years we've sought, and (sometimes) caught, these fish throughout their range, but they still remain our big problem—and therein lies the joy of fishing.

If all fish were easy to take, there wouldn't be much sport of anticipation in tossing out the lures.

Studying the habits of game fish, where they lurk at different seasons, what they eat, etc., is an interesting as well as fascinating pastime, and it also helps put a few in the creel or on the stringer.

However, this course hasn't helped us much with the small-mouth, for when we think we have him catalogued he does just the opposite of what is expected.

"A Temperamental Cuss"
When all the signs show he should be taking only live bait and weighted fly, and behold, he rises to the dry fly. Other times he'll turn up his nose at feathers, hair and plugs when they should be good and strike live minnows! The small-mouth is a temperamental cuss and not a voracious as the big-mouth. It requires more to tempt him. When hooked, some will fight it out in the depths while others do a fandance on the surface that would make a big-mouth burrow into the mud for shame.

Here's the story of a veteran (and truthful) fisherman about his experiences on a good small-mouth stream: "Everything seemed right for the wet fly. Too early in spring for insects or other surface food. Tried everything in my kit and then turned to live bait, including worms. No luck. Toward mid-day the fish appeared near the top and lazed around in small areas like they do in spawning season, but that was six weeks away. The day was chilly.

"They disappeared during the afternoon, evidently to the deep places in the little river from where other fellows took some nice ones a few days previous. Tried minnows when the fish seemed to be 'sunning'—without results. Also tried dry flies—without showing myself or casting a shadow. Only a few under-limit ones responded."

Well, brother, your guess is as good as ours.

Seymour Weiss Ordered Face Income Tax Charge

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—Federal Judge Wayne G. Borah denied Thursday a plea of abatement filed by Seymour Weiss, New Orleans hotel manager and political associate of the late Huey P. Long, charged in two indictments with violation of the federal income tax laws.

The ruling, which sustained a demurrer filed by District Attorney Rene Viosca, means Weiss and others facing similar charges will have to face trial.

Loss of power and even stalling are caused by ice forming around the intake valve, which results in a loss of air supply. This happens because air sometimes drops to 35 degrees below atmospheric temperature after it enters a carburetor, due to rapid evaporation of fuel.

Non-Ayranis Try to Alter Appearance

But Hitlerites Are Keeping a Sharp Lookout for the Professor

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Racial gymnastics, guaranteed to make the earnest athlete blond as Siegfried and gradually re-form his skull along Nordic lines is the latest in Nazi Germany.

But such exercise is not recommended by government or party; in fact, a bitter attack on the new form of "physical culture" has been launched by the "Schwarze Korps," organ of Hitler's black-uniformed SS.

According to the SS paper the promoter of "racial gymnastics" is a Stuttgart physical culture teacher interested in financial returns of his book on how to become Nordic through exercise.

It seems one of the professor's readers wrote him a testimonial saying: "My skull rapidly is changing form. There are days when I can distinctly feel the pain in my cranial sutures."

Others recorded how the color of their hair or eyes was changing. Something else that will be changing soon, the readers of the "Schwarze Korps" are encouraged to deduce, is the professor's place of residence.

Land Costly for Argentina's Army

No More "Gifts" Will Be Accepted by South American Republic

BUENOS AIRES.—(AP)—The Argentine army will ponder a long time before accepting any more gifts of real estate.

It calculates that a plot of land given the army in 1922 has cost the government 25 times as much as the land cost the donors, which was 80,000 pesos (about $23,000).

Since then the government has spent two million pesos (about $580,000) for improvements, including barracks, gymnasiums, and rifle range.

The war department recently rejected a similar offer for a plot of land in Cordoba province.

Black-Draught Relief Is Prompt and Refreshing

It's a good idea that so many people have—to keep Black-Draught handy so they can take a dose for prompt relief at the first sign of constipation.

"I have used Black-Draught a long time, about as long as I can remember, and have a package on my shelf now," writes Mr. Sherman Sneed, of Evansville, Tenn. "I take Black-Draught for constipation which causes headache, a tired feeling, biliousness, a bad taste in the mouth and sluggish feeling. Black Draught, taken about two nights, clears up this trouble and I get all right."

Black-Draught is made of medicinal herbs, dried in a finely ground, but no other change in their natural condition. It is a laxative that men and women like so well because of the refreshing relief it brings in constipation troubles.

Longest Bridge Is Fire Target

Battling a spectacular blaze that forced 12 workmen to leap into the water, a fireboat here is shown playing streams of water on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge, longest in the world, as huge billows of dense smoke roll up. It was the span's first fire and likely the last, said officials, as the structure is entirely of steel. The flames started when a white-hot rivet was dropped on some creosote-soaked piling that had not been removed from the span.

Sees No Chance for Peak Cotton Crop

Senator Smith of South Carolina Tells of Bad Soil Conditions

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Chairman Smith (Dem., S. C.) told the Senate Agriculture Committee Thursday that the possibility of a bumper crop of cotton this year "is gone forever." He interrupted the committee's cotton investigation to say that the soil will be in condition for cotton planting in the Eastern belt.

"I have never seen in all my experience soil conditions which exist today from here to Florida," Smith said.

The investigation, to continue next week, heard Gardiner Miller, a former president of the New York Cotton Exchange, read a report opposing futures contract changes. Smith and his staff of investigators favor changes in the delivery of cotton on contract and a limitation on hedging.

Made Bombing Station
THORNEY ISLAND, Eng.—(AP)—Farms 800 years old are being abandoned on this small island, off the south coast of England, to make way for military airplane hangers and landing fields.

Three hundred farmers and laborers are being transferred to the mainland. Their centuries-old cottages and manor houses are giving way to modern steel and concrete.

Three bombing squadrons are to be stationed on the island.

Hit-and-run drivers were responsible for the death of 2150 people during 1935.

STORIES IN STAMPS
By I. S. Klein

SYMBOL OF NAZI POWER

THOUSANDS of years ago, when civilization was centered in the Orient, the hooked cross known as the swastika was used as the symbol of religious belief in China and in India. It could be found in the monasteries of Tibet, the temples of China, and the Buddhist shrines of India.

Then, as people traveled westward, they brought with them their beliefs and the symbols of their religions. And so the swastika moved with them. Today travelers may see this ancient cross in the ruins of Troy and on the ancient Celtic stones of Britain.

Most famous, however, is adoption of the swastika as the symbol of Nazi power in Germany. At first it was merely the sign of the Nazi movement, but when Adolf Hitler became dictator of Germany in 1933, it soon became the symbol of German, or Aryan, culture. In 1935, the swastika was made the central design of Germany's national flag. At the same time, Germany issued a new stamp with the hooked cross of the ancient Orient, of the Greeks and the Celts, as its central design. It is shown here.

This Woman Runs Farm Profitably

Edna Peavy, of Georgia, Is "Head Man" on a 250-Acre Farm

GREENVILLE, Ga.—(AP)—"A lot of hard work, a lot of planning and ever so much worrying."

That's how Edna Peavy, in two years as "head man" on a 250-acre farm, says she has managed to pay off a stack of bills and put money in the bank.

Without any training for farm work, Miss Peavy took charge of the farm in March, 1934, after her father's death. She lives there with her mother, and a hired man assists in the work.

Up at Dawn
Arising at dawn, she milks six cows before breakfast—then jumps into her automobile and is off to town to dispose of a load of milk, vegetables, butter and eggs to regular customers.

Then she hurries home to take up the managerial reins.

She is a believer in diversified farming and last year had 60 acres in cultivation—40 in corn, 10 in peas, nine in cotton and one in sweet potatoes.

"I don't depend altogether on crops for a living," she explains. "Sometimes we have crop failures, or ridiculously low prices and I like to have money coming in all the time."

Money in Poultry
She keeps between 50 and 75 hens and says her eggs and surplus chickens usually bring good prices.

"In summer the gardens and the peach, apple and fig trees add to my income," she continues. "Some of the fruit and vegetables are sold to my milk and butter customers."

In support of her theories the "lady farmer" points to a bank account sufficient to finance her business through the harvest season.
